

MESSAGE NOVEMBER.6.2017

O Jerusalem, days of justice and desolation will come to this lost and aimless world because it has not wanted to hear the voice of its God. The Only God¹ over all the Earth and over the Universe, over the created and the uncreated.

I am², here I am My people. You do not get tired of looking for other gods, false gods that will lead you to the ruin of your life and your soul; but you are anxious to search and search without stopping out of the way of your Savior. You will find nothing outside of Me, My people, only sadness and despair in a world that will never fill your heart.

Here I am My people, I come for you, to be with you and rescue you from the most terrible darkness that surrounds you. You do not see, son, and the sad and dramatic thing is that you believe that you see³ and do not seek the light, the light in your soul, the light in your heart, the light in your life.

O Jerusalem of My entrails that you leave Me, that you leave Me again because you do not believe in My coming, in My arrival in your heart, where you will see all the sins of your life pass from one to the other in the mist of the most terrible pain of your soul, because for the first time you will see the greatest damage and the terrible evil of all your sins. You will cry, cry for love and repentance and you will see My help and My Mercy. Yes, son, that day you will search and gasp like for air to breath the Love of your Master and My Mercy over you, because your sins will fill you with pain and dejection, the greatest pain you have ever experienced and the most absolute abandonment with all and of everything that surrounds⁴ you. You will be alone, alone before Me, and nothing and no one will come to your aid, to help you at that moment; you will only ask to embrace My Forgiveness and My Mercy; you will seek My Love as you never did before, because for the first time you will truly feel you are a creature of God⁵ and will embrace the one who gave you life, the one who saved you⁶ from the clutches of the devil, the one who gives you life every moment of your life with His ineffable⁷ moans, praying for you and in you. O, Yes, son, yes, that day you will know for the first time who you are: son of God⁸, son of the Most High and nothing or anyone of everything that has happened so far in your life will be important for you; only your God will fill that moment, that moment of your life when you have before you the moral ruin of all your sins in your life.

Only in My Love and My Mercy will you find peace and the strength to continue living after having seen so much evil and so much sin in your life. Nothing and nobody will sustain you, only I, only My Love, only My Mercy, only My Forgiveness; and this you will search without ceasing in those moments of agony and sadness, abandonment of everything created and known in that silence of the creation that awaits you, only before Me.

But son, you know that I care for you, that I love you and I will not leave you without My help in those moments, if you really seek Me in your heart and want My Cross that saves you and redeems⁹ you.

Now prepare yourself for that moment with assiduity to My sacraments and in the silence of your life.

Seek silence; seek the abandonment of everything and everyone, because there I am in your solitude¹⁰. Do not look for Me in the noise, in the agitation of life because I am not there; I am in your heart, son, in your soul, in the heart of the brother who needs you, in the eyes of the hungry and sorrowful child, in the poor beggar who is lost and confused prey of satan and needs you, son, look for Me in the one who suffers¹¹, the one who laughs¹² because he is full of Me; look for Me, my son, in truth and in love; look for Me, my son, in the depths of your heart, in the truth of your life; look for Me, son and you will find Me that day. Put yourself to work in the truth of your life, in the questions that you never dared to ask yourself, look for Me on the cross that you do not want to look at, that you do not want to show because you fear humiliation, pain, abandonment, silence, because it puts you in front of yourself like a mirror, that does not hide even the smallest defect in you.

It is late and the night of time is approaching this world.

Peace, children, peace to you¹³, but peace is not absence of struggle and violence in the interior to end the old man inside; no, son, fight and be violent against yourself, the violence that drags and pulls all the bad that is in you and has grown in you, in your poor heart.

Cheer up, son and get to work in the serious following of your Savior. I wait for you in the one who suffers and in the silence of your life, I look you in the brothers. Go to Me, son, go to the source of My Grace, of My Salvation: My Sacraments and meet Me and begin to prepare for the long awaited moment of the encounter with your Savior in the depths of your heart, in the silence of your life.

Never despair of the failure of your life, of the nonsense of the path, and seek the light and love in Who is the possessor of it, because He is the Light and the Love. Do not look for substitutes or cheap consolations, because that day they will not hold you; look for love, look for the One that is Love.

I am the way, the truth and the life¹⁴, says the Lord, everyone who is of Me will not be lost.

Praise the Lord.

I, Jesus, speak to you through My dear child of the soul and I welcome all those who read these words in My Holy Heart with a special Grace of the last times, of the preparation for the Warning, for the meeting with Me. Peace to you. Amen.

Watch your soul, watch your heart, do not neglect because I am close. Amen, Alleluia Days will come, O Jerusalem, that you will long to find My words and you will not, because the roaring lion¹⁵ will impede everything holy, what is of Me.

Now, now is the time; convert and believe in the Gospel¹⁶ and you will save yourself¹⁷, son. Embrace yourself to the Cross of your Redeemer, let Me cover you with My Blood and you will have Eternal Life.

Now, now is the time to prepare your soul and your heart to My coming; now you have My Words, son: be grateful for the Grace that today I pour

¹⁴ Jn 14, 6

¹⁵ 1 Pe 5, 8

¹⁶ Mk 1, 14-15

out on you with these words and take My message to all you can reach, so that the world may be pressed to My call to conversion, to prepare to stand before Me.

Courage, children of My Soul, I take you in My Holy Heart and I do not forget you, not even for a moment, son of My Cross, son of My Passion; do not forget Me, and help Me reach all and save all the souls who seek My Salvation. Amen, amen.

I am on the Cross for you, for you, for your love, for your salvation. Come to Me, son, come to Me.

The sky will darkened, because the Light will shine in the world as never before; your soul and heart will be filled with the Light that comes from above. You will see, son, you will see your life sustained by My Love and My Mercy; prepare yourself for that day because it will be a day of rigor and justice as there never has been or will be.

The righteous will exult with the Lord and the fallen, because of the evil they live in the darkness of hell and because they reject Me every day in their lives, will cry and repent for the Mercy of the Blood of Christ on them, and others will reject Me forever and will make war with the saints of God the last days of this world, where so much pain and so much blood will be poured out by the influence of satan in so many hearts, which he has bought with the weapons of evil and eternal damnation.

How many souls bought by him will serve him and will follow him in the last days and will shed the blood of the righteous, of the sons of the Most High, who will be faithful until the last moment of their lives and will die for their faith among the songs of My angels. The heavens will open those days to receive so many souls who will go up to heaven victims of martyrdom for the faith to your Savior. Pray, children, pray for those days, so that the Lord have Mercy on you and fill you with His strength and His Mercy.

Nothing else I would tell you for now.

Be strong and courageous¹⁸ and help Me to save the souls that are lost and walk aimlessly prey to evil. Help Me children, because they are also My children and I poured My Blood on the Cross for them. Help Me, children and suffer the abandonment and suffering that following these words will cause in your life.

Praise the Lord and give thanks always and everywhere for His Love and His Mercy. Amen.

Nothing will happen without My permission.
